Introduction of Tour

[Changdeokgung Palace]

Changdeokgung Palace was the second royal villa built following the construction of Gyeongbokgung Palace in 1425. It was the principal palace for many kings of the Joseon Dynasty, and is the most well-preserved of the five remaining royal (Joseon) palaces. The palace grounds are comprised of a public palace area, a royal family residence building, and the east garden known as a place of rest for the kings. The east garden boasts a gigantic tree that is over 300 years old, a small pond and a pavilion.

[Deoksugung Palace]

Located at the corner of Seoul's busiest downtown intersection, Deoksugung Palace is famous for its elegant throne-entrance road. It is also the only palace that still alongside a series of modern-style buildings that add to the urbanism of the surrounding area. This palace, originally belonging to the Goryeo dynasty (918-1392), was later occupied by the Joseon Dynasty. It became a royal palace for the Kanghwa (1356-1418) who ascended to the throne and gave the palace the name Deoksugung Palace in 1411.
